

1. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Our current ecommerce performance presents a concerning picture, with a significant gap to our target goal of $142. The strategy gap stands at $71, indicating a substantial shortfall in our desired outcomes. Notably, the probability of strategy success is currently at 0.0%, suggesting that our existing approach may not be effective in achieving our objectives. This warrants a thorough review of our strategy to identify areas for improvement and implement necessary adjustments to get back on track.

Despite the challenges in achieving our target goal, there are positive signs in our transaction volumes. The average order value has remained steady at $109.48, demonstrating healthy customer engagement and low volatility across all customer segments. This stability in average order value is a encouraging indicator, as it suggests that our customers are consistently finding value in our offerings. However, to bridge the strategy gap and achieve our target goal, we must focus on increasing the overall volume of transactions or exploring opportunities to elevate the average order value. A data-driven approach to optimizing our ecommerce strategy will be crucial in identifying the most effective levers to pull and ultimately driving business growth.
