

1. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Our current performance in the edtech domain presents a concerning picture, with a probability of strategy success standing at 0.0%. This indicates a significant gap between our existing approach and the desired outcomes, highlighting the need for a substantial reassessment of our strategy. The strategy gap to target is $0.5, which, when considered in the context of our target goal of $1, suggests that we are only halfway to achieving our objectives. This disparity underscores the urgency of revisiting and recalibrating our approach to bridge this gap effectively.

Despite the challenges posed by our overall strategy, there are positive signs in our transaction data. The average order value has remained steady at $109.48, demonstrating healthy transaction volumes with low volatility across all customer segments. This stability is a crucial asset, as it provides a foundation upon which we can build and adjust our strategy. However, it is essential to leverage this strength to address the broader strategic shortcomings. By analyzing the factors contributing to the steady average order value and understanding how these can be scaled or adapted to improve overall performance, we can begin to develop a more effective strategy that moves us closer to our target goal of $1. This will require a nuanced approach, balancing the reinforcement of our strengths with the addressing of our weaknesses to ultimately enhance our probability of strategy success.
